Reflections

Pastor Caleb Hughes

Breaking the Wonder Scale

An annual tradition I share with my father-in-law is going to Memphis each year to eat delicious barbecue and watch a Memphis Grizzlies basketball game at the FedEx Forum. We've been doing it for I think nine years now. Through a generous business associate, we are blessed with fantastic seats for each game.

The first few times we went, I was so immersed and enthralled by the experience. Nine years ago I had only been to a couple of NBA games and didn't have great seats. You truly are able to take it in at a different level when you're closer to the action! It is one of those things that—even as a man in my thirties—makes me feel like a kid again.

We recently had our 2022 trip. We ate barbecue on Beale St. and had a fantastic time together at the game—as I get older, the more I cherish the time. At the same time, the older I've gotten—and the more games we've attended—though I still have a great time, love the fellowship we share, and love seeing the action in person and up close(!), it isn't like that first time (or second time). The feeling of "wonder" isn't what it once was.

To be honest, the seats could be court-side, the meals could be five-star, and the games could be overtime thrillers, but the fact of the matter is that things in this life don't last forever on the "wonder scale."

And yet, God tells us that heaven does. Heaven and earth will one day pass away (Rev. 21:1), but eternity with God will forever inspire wonder, fill us up, provide joy, grant us pleasure, and satisfy our longings (Ps. 16:11). And the reason why? Because God is the source of it all—but, hey, maybe we will have some barbecue too.

For further encouragement, read: Psalm 16:11 & Revelation 21-22
